FIRST DAY.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18TH, 1921.

THE THIRTY-FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING of the Grand Camp Confederate Veterans of Virginia, was held in the Jefferson Theatre, City of Charlottesville, on Tuesday, the 18th day of October, 1921.

Present, the following officers:

James M. Mullen, Grand-Commander, Petersburg, Va.
Thomas S. West, First Lieutenant-Commander, Bedford, Va.
R. M. Colvin, Second Lieutenant-Commander, Culpeper, Va.
F. M. Burrows, Third Lieut.-Commander, Washington, D. C.
J. P. Whitman, Inspector-General, Horsepen, Va.
S. W. Paulette, Grand Treasurer, Farmville, Va.
Robert Gilliam, Adjutant-General, Petersburg, Va.

The meeting was called to order by the Grand Commander, J. M. Mullen, and the proceedings were opened with a prayer for Divine guidance by Rev. Vernon P'Anson, acting Grand Chaplain, after which the Grand Commander made his annual report to the Grand Camp as follows:

ADDRESS OF THE GRAND COMMANDER.

COMRADES:—

This is the thirty-fourth annual meeting of the Grand Camp of Confederate Veterans of Virginia, and the third that has been held in this city, the first in 1895, the second in 1908 and the present, an interval of thirteen years between each. It was the spirit of hospitality exhibited at those former meetings that largely induced the Camp to accept the invitation for this year. While the greetings and hospitality were, on the former occasions, enthusiastic and generous, it is manifest this Re-union will be the climax of the endeavors of this good city on behalf of the survivors of those who "wore the gray." All honor to the old University town, the seat of education, culture and refinement and the home of fair women and brave men.

As the program for the unveiling of the Equestrian Statue of the immortal Jackson is elaborate, the routine business of the Grand Camp should be dispatched as expeditiously as possible; and it is, therefore, in order that your Commander set the example by making his report short and to the point.

The time has passed for any extended remarks or suggestions from the Grand Commander, or for any prolonged discussion of the business that may come before the Camp. It is for us to conserve and not construct. One of the principal duties and endeavors in past years was the formation of new Camps, and to induce them and those already organized to become members of the Grand Camp. In this the Grand Camp was eminently successful. It organized in 1888 with four Camps on the Roster. In 1889 and 1890, there were only ten, while in 1896, at the Ninth Annual Meeting, there were eighty-five on the Roster. This number was increased from year to year until a few years ago, they reached one hundred and twenty-seven, the highest number ever reported.

Your commander would suggest that hereafter there be one or more meetings, prior to each annual meeting of the Grand Camp, of the Inspector General and his assistants to consider and put into execution some plan to strengthen the several Camps by inducing the non-affiliating veterans to become members. We cannot hope, or even desire, to form new Camps, but we should strive to keep in existence those that are now functioning. Above all, it is of great importance we should have some accurate idea of the number and condition of those Veterans who still survive.

The report of your Inspector General last year showed 94 Camps and 2,441 members on the roll; and his report the year before, 98 Camps and 2,853 members—not an encouraging exhibit. It admonishes us to renewed effort to do everything possible to increase the membership and to put new life into each and every Camp. Our members are growing sadly smaller with each recurring year.

More attention should be given to the functioning of the various committees. All should file reports no matter how little they may have to report.

If there are committees no longer necessary, they should be discontinued. Last year the Grand Commander stated in his report that the History Committee had been unable to report at that meeting on account of the feeble health of its chairman, also stating that some of its members had died. The same conditions exist in the personnel of other Committees. All vacancies should be filled so that the work assigned can be the better done.

There seems to be some confusion as to the number of Sponsors to which the Grand Camp is entitled, how distributed and by whom to be appointed. Your Commander would suggest the matter should be straightened out. The ladies, God bless them, must not be neglected, and will not be so long as there is an old Confederate alive.

Shortly after the meeting last year at Culpeper, my attention was called to the supposed need of further legislation for pensions. This should be looked after by the Committee on Legislation, so that, if the need exists the Legislature should, at its next session, be petitioned to grant the relief.

My attention has been called to the movement for the erection of a memorial to that illustrious Virginian, the late Matthew Fontaine Maury. The letter addressed to me by the Secretary of "The Matthew Fontaine Maury Association," of Richmond, will be submitted to the Camp for such action as it may desire to take.

As has been intimated, our usefulness for constructive work has about ended; and it behooves us to "put our house in order" for the "Sons and Daughters," upon whom, in a few years, will devolve the duty of taking up and completing what has been left undone by those who followed Lee and Jackson. They must keep alive the memory of the valor and courage and endurance of their fathers. There remains many an unmarked battlefield, so eloquent of the heroism and devotion of those who marched and fought under "The Stars and Bars." Much of the history of that unequal struggle is unwritten. Other monuments should be erected and those already erected cared for; and the needy and distressed looked after.

We are forcibly reminded by evidence of the magnificent preparations for the occasion that the principal reason for our presence here is to take part in the unveiling exercises of the Equestrian Statue of Stonewall Jackson, whom all Confederates love to honor. Time will only add to his great fame. His campaigns, notably those of the Valley; Second Manassas, Harper's Ferry and Chancellorsville, are models of strategy. It was this great gift that caused him rarely, if ever to blunder, and helped to give to the Army of Northern Virginia more force and power for its numbers than any other army that ever existed. Future ages will wonderingly talk of him and his mighty deeds. Look upon this statue when unveiled, and imagine you can see this great chieftain's eagerness and intensify on the march to Hooker's rear at Chancellorsville. It is recorded that, as he rode, he leaned over on the neck of his horse as if in that way the march might be hurried.

But, while it is right and proper the deeds of our peerless leaders should be remembered and cherished with pride and gratitude, let us not forget the private in the ranks. Only a private, but

"As Bayard he was brave, as Rupert he was gay, Reckless as Murat in the heat of the fray."

There were none braver than those who fought for the "Lost Cause." For four long years they bore upon their bayonets the fate of the Southern Confederacy. The brilliant deeds of that array of "bright muskets and tattered uniforms" will live and glow upon the historic page. They followed where duty led and died where honor ordered. With no repining at their sad fortune, "with no unmanly cringing, no pretense of repentance or remorse, they turned their faces to the future, put their trust anew in God, and went to Work." These are the heroic men, who, unsurpassed in march, or charge or defeat, "crowned Jackson with immortality, and followed Lee with unquestioning faith." All honor to this noble band of patriot soldiers.

Respectfully submitted,

J. M. MULLEN, Grand Commander

SECOND DAY.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19TH, 1921.

The Grand Camp met pursuant to adjournment at 10 A. M.
Capt Chamberlain, of the History Committee, made a verbal report for that committee.

On motion of Comrade Goolrick, the Commander appointed the following—John T. Goolrick, James McGill, C. R. Bishop, W. B. Freeman and Robert Gilliam—a committee to co-operate with other committees to commemorate and keep in everlasting memory the battle-field of Manassas.

The Inspector-General made his report, which is ordered to be filed:

REPORT OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

Horsepen, Va., October 14, 1921.

Mr. Commander and Comrades:—

In submitting this report of the Inspector for 1921, I wish to say there exists a spirit of uninterestedness in many of the camps. The officials of which are charged with the duty of making their reports promptly and accurately to the Assistant Inspector Generals of their districts, when furnished blank forms and stationery, and called upon for their reports, have shown such disinclination to comply with the rules of the Grand Camp in reference thereto, as to cause the Inspector General and his assistants embarrassment and much extra work in the discharge of their duties, and a waste of time and stationery.

And the failure of the Assistant Inspectors, to have the reports of the Adjutants of Camps corrected before making their reports to the Inspector General, making him responsible for the correction of inaccurate reports, is also a waste of time in correspondence and stationery, and I hope will be discontinued.

The failure of Adjutants to answer all questions correctly on the forms, answering a part of the questions, leaving others blank or a line drawn through them, as of no importance, creates confusion and is unsatisfactory, and I hope a better system will be adopted in the future.

The failure of camps to pay dues for their full membership and only reporting on roll the members who pay dues, has become a serious hindrance to the business interest and progress of the Grand Camp.

These are some of the evils that exist, and no veteran should ignore or treat them lightly, if they have the welfare of the organization at heart; and I appeal to your conscience, believing you have no desire in mind other than a faithful performance of duty.

Comrades, these facts are not presented in a spirit of complaint or criticism, but to call your attention to them, and, if possible, to obtain a greater interest and a more faithful discharge of our respective duties to the Grand Camp.

I am grieved to announce our loss by death of Major J. Ogden Murray, Assistant Inspector General of the 7th District and one of the "immortals at Fort Delaware." He died at Radford, Virginia, June the 12th, 1921, eighty-two years of age. He was a brave and gallant soldier, a loyal citizen and a gentleman of the highest attainments—and devoted to the interests of our organization, and will be greatly missed in its councils.

I recommended the appointment of Adjutant C. B. Linney, of the John-Bowie Strange Camp to fill the vacancy which was approved.

The continued serious indisposition of Asst. Inspector General Thomas W. Hungerford, of the 8th District, forced him to tender his resignation, which I very much regretted to accept, and upon the recommendation of Commander Fred Beall, of the Harry Heth Camp 119, Washington, D. C., I recommended for appointment Major W. L. Wilkerson of the Harry Heth Camp to fill the vacancy, which was approved.

I also recommended Adjutant Benjamin M. Cox, of the Thornton-Pickett Camp, Farmville, Virginia, 4th District, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the promotion of Major Samuel W. Paulett to Quartermaster General, which was also approved.

Respectfully submitted,,

JAS. P. WHITMAN, Inspector General.

REPORT OF QUARTERMASTER GENERAL

Commander and Comrades of the Grand Camp,
Confederate Veterans of Virginia:—

In presenting this, my first annual report as Quartermaster General of the Grand Camp, permit me first to thank the adjutants of all camps who have so promptly met the call for dues. This is a duty which should be attended to without delay by every adjutant when called upon so to do by the Quarter-Master General. Comrades, you who have not come in contact with the duties of this office have no idea how much trouble it gives your Quarter-Master General when dues are not paid promptly.

Remember there are 127 camps reporting to this officer, whose duty it is to keep an accurate account against each camp. It is therefore impossible for him to give proper credits when your adjutants delay their reports until the Grand Camp is in session. Now comrades, I request that you urge your adjutants to forward their reports promptly, with check to cover all dues when called upon. I sent a notice to every camp in the State urging them to remit dues before the meeting of the Grand Camp, but so far only 65 have responded to the notice. Sixty-two camps have not been heard from, and are now behind in their dues.

To this report I attach the name, number and amount paid by each Camp, and with the consent of the Grand Commander, I wish to read the list in your presence.

Comrades, the duty of this office is a labor of love, and therefore entitled to all the aid each member can give, to assist the Quarter-Master General in the proper discharge of the duties of the office.

Respectfully submitted,

S. W. PAULETT, Quarter-Master General

Commander Warfield, of the Finance Committee, presented the financial report of the Quartermaster-General, which was adopted and ordered to be printed:
